

WEST HURLEY MAN
FATALLY INJURED

Peter J. Donnelly of West Hurley was fatally injured while walking the Ulster & Delaware Railroad tracks between the iron bridge crossing the Esopus Creek and the Washington avenue viaduct about six o'clock Sunday morning.

The injured man was struck and dragged for some distance before the train was stopped. He was rushed to the Kingston City Hospital where he was immediately examined and operated upon by Dr. E. Norwood and Dr. A. A. Stern. Mr. Donnelly had received a fracture of the base of the skull, his right leg was broken and the left so badly crushed that it had to be amputated immediately. He died Sunday evening from a hemorrhage of the brain.

The dead man resided at West Hurley and was employed on the state road. He is survived by a sister Miss Mary Donnelly of West Hurley. He was thirty five years old.

ABLE ADDRESS ON ABRAHAM LINCOLN

A truly remarkable address on "Abraham Lincoln" was delivered at the new high school building on Sunday afternoon, July 4, by the Rev. Andrew Schriver of Chester, Orange County. The patriotic service was arranged by Washington Camp, No. 2, P. O. S. A. Francis Merritt acting as master of ceremonies. A good sized audience had assembled when the exercises were opened with prayer, by the Rev. W. F. Stowe. "The Star Spangled Banner," was then sung by the entire assembly, standing. The first speaker was Floyd W. Powell, former city treasurer who gave a short and emphatic statement of his creed regarding what our country has been, is and will be. Following the singing of a patriotic song by a male quartet composed of Albert Britt, Frank Taylor, Albert Crouthamel and Albert Rice, with Harry Elmdorf at the piano, the Rev. Mr. Schriver was introduced. Judging from his address he was a man in his prime at the age in years of seventy-five, and he spoke without any notes, in a conversational yet forceful manner.

In 1861," began the speaker, "Abraham Lincoln was made president of the United States, the greatest American there has ever been, who was wholly the product of American life." The speaker then went on to give the salient points in the history of Abraham Lincoln's ancestors; in the personal history of the great emancipator; and in the history of our country during Lincoln's time. It was evident from the first that Mr. Schriver had received his education in English from the same schooling as did Lincoln, whose early library consisted of the Bible, Hale's History of the United States, a history of George Washington, Pilgrim's Progress, Robinson Crusoe, and Aesop's Fables, "a group which the speaker considered an improvement on Dr. Elliott's shelf of books. Simple, accurate language, short sentences full of pith, all presented in a logical manner, made of the address a lesson in English as forceful as it was a presentation of history and character building. The few statements made, relative to the historical conditions both at home and abroad, today, were the more impressive, because, though disquisitions, they were deductions from past history, told in a brief and straightforward manner, which did not distract the mind from the main subject. Toward the close of the address, the speaker said, "Having read the history of many great men, and of great nations, I am persuaded that no man can become truly great unless he has an education of the heart as well as of the head. Such a man, Mr. Schriver knew Lincoln to be. Lincoln, whom Bryce considered the 'first American, the second Englishman and one of the greatest men of the world.'" Mr. Schriver's own summing up of this man whom the world now loves and honors, was one worthy to be remembered. It was, "Abraham Lincoln had the heart of a mother; the mind of a philosopher; the ability of a statesman."

The service was closed with the singing of "America," and the benediction, pronounced by the Rev. Mr. Stowe.

A Reckless Automobilist.

Seretary Fred Sahloff of the board of health had a narrow escape from serious injury on Monday morning. He had attended the patriotic exercises on the city hall lawn and was standing on the corner waiting for a trolley car. As he stepped out to board the car an automobile whizzed by and the mud guard of the machine hit a package he held in his hand, knocking it to the ground. Who was running the machine is not known.

An Esopus Beer Bottle.

Sunday evening while the West Shore train due in Kingston at 10:15 o'clock was passing Esopus some celebrator of the Fourth hurled an empty beer bottle through one of the coach windows hitting the conductor of the train in the side of the face, cutting a deep gash.

SAFE AND SANE
INDEPENDENCE DAY

The Knights of Columbus held a safe and sane celebration of the Fourth of July at the city hall green on Monday. There was a specially constructed grand stand on the city hall lawn, prettily decorated with American flags and bunting. Although the weather was threatening the crowd was not in the least dismayed and turned out in goodly numbers and far exceeded any expectations. The exercises were conducted by the Hon. William H. Grogan.

Seated upon the platform were the Hon. William H. Grogan, Grand Knight P. T. Murphy, Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck, the Hon. Palmer Canfield, Jr., the Rev. Charles F. Kennedy, the Rev. John H. Briody, the Rev. Father Paul James Francis (formerly Father Watson of this city), the Rev. John J. Hickey, the Rev. A. H. Haynes, William D. Cashin, William Roach and Robert Howard.

After a selection by Muller's Band the invocation was delivered by the Rev. Charles F. Kennedy, rector of St. John's Church. The Declaration of Independence was then read by Robert Howard.

Mayor Canfield spoke at great length on patriotism and the association of Washington with the declaration and of the many strifes and struggles that were endured and overcome by the earlier settlers that they might have their independence and that the declaration of independence was the outcome of all these struggles. He then viewed the struggle for liberty of the early states through the eyes of Kingston. He outlined in a large measure the plans of the British to invade America and to rush down from the north slaughtering and murdering everywhere. He also told of the disposition of the people of the Esopus at that time and the great opposition they made to the advances of the British and their watchfulness over the Tories whom they expected to turn back on them at any time. He also told of the visit of Washington to Kingston and concluded by telling how fitting it was that Kingston should celebrate on this day because of the very important part which Kingston played in the war for independence.

Mayor Canfield in his address called attention to the fact that this city has defaulted in recent years in the matter of Independence Day celebration but hereafter it was the duty of the city itself to conduct such celebrations.

On this subject Mayor Canfield said:

"The city itself has defaulted in the past recent years in the opportunity of stamping and reviving the coloring of the picture which it has allowed to fade of the great sacrifice which General Washington and his humble heroes lived during the dark days that liberty was developed and created in and by their minds and their hearts and activities. I believe that the city, rich as it is in Revolutionary history should lift itself upwards at this time each year in tribute to the great leader of the Revolution and the founder of our nation and the sturdy men who were behind him and with him. Nearly all the cities are awakening to the fact that the city itself should have such a celebration. At the conference of mayors of this state held in Troy last month, a resolution was unanimously adopted recommending that the mayors of all cities of the state, and especially where there are foreign born citizens, should appoint committees to arrange for a citizenship reception and for appropriate exercises. About one out of every eight persons who walk our streets and who reside here were born in another country. While originally the thirteen stripes represented the thirteen colonies and the thirteen original states, yet in my mind they also represent the thirteen races and nationalities that go to make up our cosmopolitan citizenship."

"The mayors at their conference recognized the fact that it is not sufficient that a celebration be city-wide and city-broad, that it should be a city celebration, thus municipally and officially trying the love of all the citizens, whether they be present or not, in their land and to their flag and their respect toward their constitution and laws; and hereafter, it will be the duty of the mayor of this city, as it will be done in other cities, to arrange for such a celebration and thus ever keep alive in the hearts and minds of all the citizens the fact that our country was conceived and born with thought that all are created equal, and that it was baptized in the blood of its patriots."

Judge Hasbrouck complimented the people for their loyalty and patriotism for coming out on such a day. He complimented the Knights of Columbus for their spirit of patriotism and said that the spirit was not only theirs but the entire community enjoyed it. Judge Hasbrouck paid a glowing tribute to President Wilson and urged that nation wide support be given to the president in his efforts to observe strict neutrality.

The exercises closed with benediction by the Rev. J. H. Briody. During the exercises the children of the parochial schools rendered several vocal selections under the direction of Prof. William H. Rieser. The band played several numbers during the exercises.

A Marlborough Drunk.

Philip Sheridan was brought to the county jail this morning from Marlborough to serve ten days for being drunk and disorderly.

BIDS INVITED FOR STORM KING ROAD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, July 6.—Proposals will be received by Edwin Duffey, state commissioner of highways, on July 26, 1915, for the building of a 15 feet bituminous macadam highway around Storm King and Crow's Nest mountains, through the U. S. military reservation at West Point to meet the present road running west from that village. At the same time the department will build 1.17 miles of this latter road to form connection with the West Point-Central Valley highway. For the 3.04 miles, the engineer's estimate is $327,590.95.

Following the opening of bids on December 10, 1914, for the building of the first 1.27 miles of this highway, the department rejected all proposals. This was done because there were not sufficient funds to build the balance of the road. Deducting $231,472 (made up of the low bid and engineering contingencies), from the Orange county's total state route fund of $419,718, left approximately $199,000. If the average mileage cost for the second section approximated that of the first piece, it would require an additional $61,000 to improve it.

Completed redesigning provides for an average cost of $108,000 a mile as against $180,000 for the old contract. This in the main has been accomplished by eliminating two steel bridges of 188 and 73 feet span and by narrowing the maximum road sections from 28 to 24 feet on cuts and from 26 to 22 feet on hills. Unit prices on certain items have been lowered, thus making another element in the general reduction of cost. In place of the 131 tons of metal estimated for the structures, the road across these gulleys will be formed by carving into the mountain and providing the necessary supplemental fills.

An interesting feature in connection with these plans is that they were revised and approved under the direction of First Deputy Commissioner H. Elling Breed, who 11 years ago was a member of the first survey party around these cliffs, which was in charge of State Engineer Frank M. Williams.

This completed motor route, circling around these huge mountains will not only create an unusually picturesque travelway for through tourists, but will be of inestimable service to the locality. At present these people have to sverve 15 miles inland to meet the macadamized north and south roads adjoining the river. Grades on the road do not exceed 7 per cent, a remarkable engineering feature when it is considered that similar roads in Europe show 10 per cent grades for considerable distances.

Starting at Bay View avenue in Cornwall, the road will swing around Storm King mountain, reaching a maximum elevation of 213 feet. To carry the surfacing on easy grade between the mountains, a 200 foot fill with a maximum depth of 80 feet, will be laid. As it strikes Crow's Nest, enormous quantities of large boulders are met. Some of these are 15 feet high. As the quantities of material have been balanced, the contractors will probably blast these boulders and replace them in fills by locomotive crane.

SCARLET FEVER EPIDEMIC WANES

Only three new cases of scarlet fever have been reported since the last report in The Freeman, and four cases have been released from quarantine. According to Dr. L. K. Stelle the epidemic is rapidly dying out and the number of new cases being reported is greatly diminishing.

The new cases quarantined are:

Verna Van Deusen, 376 Hasbrouck avenue, chicken pox.

Charles Ashley, 56 Henry street, scarlet fever.

Junita Christian, 128 North Front street, scarlet fever.

Cornelius Bechtold, 64 Pine Grove avenue, scarlet fever.

The following are the cases which have been released from quarantine:

Henry J. Agatha, 515 E. Lawrence street, Ben Lasher.

The outlook is very bright for a speedy extermination of the epidemic.

Sentence Reduced.

Eckert Winchell of the town of Marlborough, who recently was found guilty of disorderly conduct by Recorder Lang and committed to jail for four months, has had his sentence reduced to sixty-four days by Judge Jenkins and having served that time in jail, has been discharged.

Wanted in Iowa.

Peter Fostasos was arrested at East Kingston this morning and brought to the county jail where he is held on a requisition from Des Moines, Ia., where he is charged with grand larceny. It is claimed he stole $325.

Missing Woman Found.

Mrs. Mary Cole of No. 8 Wynkoop Place, who had been missing from her home, was located on Saturday afternoon at East Kingston. Her mind is affected at times which accounted for her wandering away from the house.

NOTED FINANCIER AND MAN WHO SHOT HIM IN COUNTRY HOME.

At the left is the latest picture of J. P. Morgan, the noted financier, and at the right is the man who attacked and shot him in the money king's country home at Glen Cove, L. I. The man refused at first to disclose his identity, but later gave the name of "F. Holt," and said he was instructor of languages at Cornell University. Reports from Ithaca say that the description of the prisoner tallies with that of a Frank Holt, who has been an instructor in German there since 1912. The picture was made following his arrest at Glen Cove, after he had been beaten by servants of Mr. Morgan. The butler, Mr. Physic, drew a coal hod over the head of the man, who was evidently a maniac.

GERMAN SUBMARINE
AT MOUTH OF THAMES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 6.—A German submarine has evaded England's cordon of destroyers and underwater craft and is operating off the mouth of the Thames, menacing all ships bound for London. This was definitely established today by the report of the captain of the Norwegian steamer Pick, which was sunk by a submarine Monday afternoon.

The Pick's captain and crew of fifteen men were landed at Harwich shortly after midnight. The captain said the Pick was torpedoed off Sunk Light ship.

The Norwegian ship was bound from Cherbourg at Warkworth in ballast.

LOCAL BASEBALL DOINGS.

Games Played or to be Played by the Home Teams.

The All Kingston baseball club defeated the High Falls club at that place on Sunday afternoon by the score of 8 to 4. The work of Kuehn and Van Aken featured for the All Kingstons. The score by innings:

High Falls	2	1	0	0	1	0	0	0	4

At Phoenixia on Monday the All Kingstons won a doubleheader, the morning game by the score of 8 to 1, and the afternoon game by a 7 to 2 score. The afternoon game was exciting up until the final inning, when the locals shoved four runs across the platter, clinching the game. The score by innings of the morning game:

Batteries—Bennett and Zelle; Ennis and Lane.

Two brilliant games were played by the Red Monograms and their opponents on Sunday and Monday. The former was a fourteen inning game with the Astors of Rhinebeck, the latter winning out by a score of 6 to 4. In the other game the Hustlers of Poughkeepsie were victorious, the score being 6 to 5, eleven innings. Both teams played big league ball and pulled off some wonderful plays.

At Mohonk on Monday the Lake Mohonk nine was defeated by the Wilbur Feds, the score being 2 to 0. Wilbur had 5 hits and Mohonk 4. It was the first defeat for the Mohonk's. Cullen and Bush were in the points for Wilbur and Owl and Juckett for Mohonk.

Two games were played at Athletic Field on Monday afternoon by the teams representing the Kingston and Newburgh Knights of Columbus. The first game was won by Newburgh by the score of 9 to 3, and the second by Kingston the score being 14 to 2. Sutton pitched a fine game for the locals.

On Sunday the Mystics took a double header. The first game against the Clermonts was by the score of 12 to 4, and the second against Rhinecliff by the score of 12 to 9. Next Sunday the Mystics meet the Crescent A. C.

DAY'S WAR NEWS
AT A GLANCE

Paris—British troops supported by French artillery, captured some German trenches southwest of Pilsen. German attacks on Sonchez railway, in Argonne and on Meuse Heights repulsed. German forces attacking in Le Pretre forest have been entirely cut to pieces.

Berlin—Attack of British aerial squadron on German naval base in North sea failed. Germans gained more successes against both Russian and allies. Reported Russian forces split in two.

Petrograd—Denied Russian army been pierced by Austro-German forces, but admitted Teutonic forces made further gains.

HOLIDAY KEEPS
RECORDER BUSY

Recorder Andrew Lang celebrated the glorious Fourth by holding court on Sunday and Monday to dispose of the many cases that were brought to his attention by the police who were kept busy seeing that order was preserved. The offences ran from plain drunks to violation of the traffic ordinance.

The largest fine imposed by the recorder was that paid by H. Woolsey of No. 332 Bath avenue, Long Branch, who was arrested on Sunday evening by Policeman Reardon and fined $20. Woolsey, who was driving on Broadway at a fast clip, was ordered to stop by the policeman but refused to do so. The policeman jumped in an automobile standing nearby and gave chase up Broadway and finally captured Woolsey. Reardon had to pull his revolver and threaten to shoot before Woolsey halted. He was fined $10 for violation of the traffic ordinance and $10 for refusing to stop when commanded.

Frank Howard was arrested by Policeman O'Neill for driving on the wrong side of the road. He was fined $3, which he paid.

Benjamin Myers was also arrested by Policeman O'Neill for speeding on Broadway. He was fined $3 and paid.

Peter McGuire, Jacob Wood and Edward Dixon were arrested by Policeman Hess on Saturday night. They were all drunk and when arraigned said they were not fighting but were trying to assist each other home. They were discharged with a reprimand.

George Wilson was arrested by Policeman Boyd on Sunday for panhandling. He was discharged with a warning to get out of town.

William Slater was arrested for driving on the wrong side of the street. Policeman O'Neill made the arrest. Slater paid a fine of $5.

Thomas Cogan of Port Ewen was arrested by Policeman Boyd for public intoxication. He said he would go back to work if discharged and was allowed to go with a reprimand.

Claude Barringer, a young 17, was arrested by Policeman Fout for driving his horse and wagon on the wrong side of the street. He was discharged with a reprimand.

Frank Albright, another young man, was arrested by Policeman Fout for driving off fire crackers on Sunday near the Kingston City Hospital. He was fined $2 which he paid.

MORGAN ASSAILANT
ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mineola, N. Y., July 6.—Frank Holt, the man who shot J. Pierpont Morgan and exploded a dynamite bomb in the national capitol at Washington, tried to commit suicide today, but his attempt was foiled by the vigilance of the guards.

Extracting the rubber from a lead pencil, Holt bent the tin holder into a sharp point with his teeth and attempted to gash himself and open an artery. However, he was under observation all the time and the improvised weapon was taken away from him before the prisoner could do himself any serious harm.

Keeper McCaffrey, who was in charge of the jail in the absence of the warden, admitted that the prisoner is in a bad way both physically and mentally.

Holt went upon a hunger strike immediately after his arrest and was warned today by district attorney Louis J. Smith that, unless he consented to eat solid food, he would be taken to the hospital and forcibly fed. Holt objected to going to the hospital, saying he was perfectly satisfied with the treatment he received in his cell.

After the prisoner's attack upon himself his person and cell was stripped of everything that he might use as a weapon in an effort to take his life. The wound inflicted upon his left wrist was very slight.

Two attempts were made during the morning to identify Holt as Eric Muentzer, the former Harvard professor, who fled to Mexico from Cambridge after killing his wife, but both failed.

Charles Attled, superintendent of public building at Cambridge came to Mineola by automobile and had a talk with Holt. Before Muentzer fled from Cambridge in 1906 he was a neighbor of Attled.

"There is a striking resemblance but I could not swear this man is Muentzer," said Attled after his interview with the prisoner.

After District Attorney Smith talked with Holt, he said:

"In my opinion, Holt is insane."

Attorney Martin W. Littleton is reported to have been retained in Holt's behalf. Thomas J. Reidy, who was previously retained as counsel for the prisoner spent several hours conferring with his client.

The following telegram was received by Holt from his wife, Leone, at Dallas, Texas:

"Have best counsel here. Advise to rest and wait and you must do the same. Send loving greetings hourly. Beautiful tribute to you in both evening papers here. I am tarrying for details of finances. I will come when you need me. Do not be afraid. Rest."

HE HAD A SHOT GUN.

George W. Bush got drunk on Monday morning and decided to celebrate the day and he obtained a shot gun of old fashioned make and started to fire it off on Pine street. He was arrested by Policeman Walker. He was fined $2 but was unable to dig up the change and left his gun as a security while he went home and got the money.

R. L. Decker was arrested by Policeman O'Neill for driving his automobile up the Broadway hill on the left hand side. He claimed he had engine trouble and was discharged with a reprimand. He was represented by Judge N. Frank O'Reilly.

Set Her Skirt On Fire.

Franchi Orpino, an Italian, was arrested on Monday by Policeman Charles Murphy. He was standing on Broadway and frightening women by exploding torpedoes under their feet. He threw one under the feet of Miss Margaret Walsh of No. 20 North Wilbur avenue, who set her skirt on fire and ruined it. He was arrested this morning and found guilty. He made restitution for the damage he had done by paying $10 and Miss Walsh withdrew the complaint and he was discharged with warning to be more careful in the future.

More Rotten Eggs.

Lazarus Kline of Abell street was again arrested on the complaint of Mrs. S. Appel who lives next door. Lazarus was found guilty a short time ago and sentenced to ten days in the county jail for throwing rotten eggs against Mrs. Appel's house. It is claimed that he only been out of jail a few hours when he again started to bombard Mrs. Appel's house with rotten eggs. The case was set down for Thursday morning.

Too Drunk To Be Arraigned.

Eugene Pool celebrated the Fourth by acquiring a glorious drunk. He was arrested by Policeman Reardon but was too drunk to be arraigned today.

A half a dozen newshoys of the Strand were notified to appear before the recorder this morning by Policeman O'Neill for shooting craps. They all declared they had not shot craps but were only watching the game. They were all placed on probation to report each Saturday until school starts.

BUTTERMILK DRINKERS

Buttermilk drinkers are called "lactomaniacs." No suggestion of "offness" in their mental constitution is implied by the name. They are always of sound mind and memory. Charles Lamb said nothing serious could be wrong with the man who was fond of apple dumplings. The same observation covers the drinker of buttermilk.

POISON FOR WEEDS.

An Arsenic Spray Used With Success in Hawaii.

Officials of the department of agriculture are greatly interested in reports received from Hawaii to the effect that one of the big sugar companies has adopted as a regular field practice the system of destroying weeds by use of an arsenic poison spray instead of by hoeing.

Experts who have conducted experiments on Hawaii sugar lands estimate that by the spraying method a saving can be made in labor of $15 to $30 per acre per annum.

The latest developments along this line in Hawaii are discussed in a letter received from Professor H. P. Agee, director of the experiment station staff of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' association. Before going to Hawaii Professor Agee co-operated with the department in experiments on Louisiana sugar land.

The value of this method in Hawaii is very great because of the fact that, like most tropical regions, the islands are subject to torrential rains. The less the surface of sugar and other lands is disturbed by cultivation the less chance there is that heavy rains will wash off the top soil or immediately beat it into compact form.

A few years ago the department of agriculture issued a bulletin dealing with the weed factor in the cultivation of corn, following a series of experiments extending over several years, which apparently established the principle that it is the removal of the weeds rather than the cultivation proper that contributes most of the production of the corn crop. A series of 125 experiments were conducted, covering many states. On some plots the most approved methods of cultivation were employed, while on other plots there was no cultivation whatever, the weeds being eliminated by surface scraping with a hoe.

A general average of all these experiments showed that the plots that were simply weeded produced 93.1 per cent as much fodder and 99.108 per cent as much grain as those that were subjected to the most approved methods of cultivation.

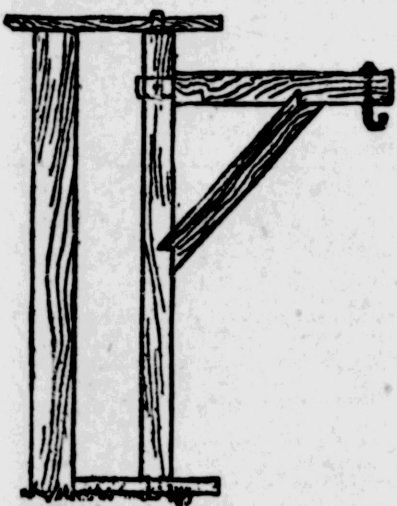

The arsenic spray method will be given a trial on corn land in Louisiana this year by experts of the office of farm management in co-operation with local authorities with a view to determining whether it is not available for use in that region, where climatic conditions to some extent approach those in Hawaii.

In Hawaii the spray is applied to the weeds with great care, since if it touches the leaves on the cane they are immediately destroyed. When carefully applied, however, either by a hand spray or by a spray consisting of an oil barrel attached to a stone sled especially constructed for the purpose and pulled by one mule there is no danger to the cane.

Frequently it is necessary to follow the sled spray with a hand spray in order to kill the few weeds that are not reached. The results of the spraying method have been so satisfactory that experiments are being connected with a view to improving the somewhat crude implements now in use.

To Swing a Beef.

Swinging a heavy steer to dress him is not child's play. By using the accompanying device, which is easily made, it can be done fairly well and without the usual straining and lifting. Make the rack as high as you think will be needed, taking into consideration the size of the animal to be handled.

The each end of a strong rope around the cross bar at the top of the hanger. Use an ordinary gambrel stick through the legs, as shown in the illustration. Take a short stick that will have room to pass clear of the stick and the steer's carcass. Turning this short stick will pull the beef as high as you want him. Then take another short stick that will come down far enough to lock the first one, and place it as shown in the figure.

The Apple Tree Borer.

Among the pests with which the orchard planter has to contend perhaps the flat headed apple tree borer is the worst, says the Farm and Fireside. The female deposits the eggs at the beginning of hot weather on the bark of young fruit trees near the ground. Most of the damage is done during the summer months. The later broods remain in the trees all winter and emerge the following spring. The borer completes its life round in one year. The eggs are about as large as the head of a pin and are covered by a hard shell. When first hatched the larva can hardly be seen with the naked eye.

But in spite of its small size it begins at once to injure the tree. Burrowing into the bark, it tunnels its way entirely around the sapwood of the tree, thus girdling and finally killing it.

Contraband.

Contraband refers to the goods that a neutral is prohibited by the laws of war to furnish to either belligerent. Under this comes such articles as are used in prosecuting hostilities, as arms, ammunition, etc.

HOW TO USE SEVERAL LITTLE HINTS EFFECTIVELY.

Salt is a good absorbent, as the housewife will discover if she runs for the salt receptacle when ink is spilled on the carpet or on the tablecloth, and puts on salt, renewing the salt as fast as it absorbs the ink. If the salt is put on the ink promptly it is generally so effective that practically no ink stain remains.

An added flavor is given to after dinner black coffee if each lump of sugar to be served with it is rubbed with a piece of lemon peel a few moments before time to bring on the coffee. Orange peel adds a delicate touch to the afternoon tea if the sugar to be used is rubbed with it a little while before it is served.

Dishes in which eggs have been prepared or batter and dough mixed in should be rinsed with cold water before they are washed. If put in hot water before the cold water is applied the heat will cook the eggs or the flour paste sufficiently to make it stick to the dishes.

Potatoes used instead of soap will keep the hands clean and the skin soft. The water in which potatoes have been boiled is a good wash for table silver and keeps it bright with little or no exertion on the part of the housewife.

FASHION FANCIES.

How to Select Cottons For Your Summer Frocks.

The woman who must select her dresses with an eye to the future would do well to plan a few frocks of the new crisp cottons. There is a positive trend toward self supporting weaves, probably the natural result of the prevailing modes—fluffy ruffles and rippling skirts. And while the clinging crepes, soft voiles and other supple fabrics will continue to be very fashionable during the summer, the indications are that their supremacy will wane with the season and in another year will be entirely superseded by the crisp weaves having sufficient dressing to give light and airy effects. In this class the organdies hold a high place, and the shops are showing a large line of these pretty cottons in attractive floral patterns. In lawns, dimities and batistes there are also large assortments to select from.

In the softer materials crepes still have a strong hold on popular favor, and whether in embroidered figures or printed patterns they are fashionable. Voiles, especially in the printed forms, are still greatly favored. Linens will probably be scarce later on, but just now there are plenty to select from. In the novelty weaves there are the Cossack linen and the covert linen that make up into such smart suits, and where a fabric with body is desired there are the piques, cotton velours and Bedford cords to select from.

Floral designs are favored in printed fabrics this season, but stripes will also be modish and are well represented in the present displays. A decided pattern shows alternate stripes of black and white, each one and one-half inches wide. Black and white effects are very fashionable and many of the new cottons show black flowers scattered over a white surface.

Even though the printed patterns will be so popular, every woman wants one or two white dresses in her wardrobe and the probabilities are that when she gets into the shops she will select material for several dresses because the displays are almost too alluring to resist. The transparent organdies that became popular last summer are being shown in both plain and embroidered effects. Voiles are in high favor and are being shown in endless varieties. In fancy white cottons the favorite snowflake patterns, known as neige, are again very popular. And then there are the cords, checks and stripes. Those carried on in groups and irregular effects that make up into such charming frocks are prominent.

How to Make a Real Strawberry Shortcake of Biscuit Dough.

The strawberry in its shortcake form is deservedly popular, but not, pray, the cake dessert palmed off in place of the genuine biscuit basis on which all good shortcakes depend. Any dough mixture like that for baking powder biscuits, only made a little richer, is far more delicious combined with the berries than any piece of sponge or other cake. It takes only a half hour to complete a strawberry shortcake of two hot biscuit crusts, thickly buttered, spread with mashed berries and garnished with whole ones. Any woman with two hands should be ashamed to offer an imitation shortcake of stale sponge cake when a delicious biscuit dough is so easy to make.

How to Make Lunch Cloths of Embroidered Damask.

Some of the newest lunch cloths are being shown of embroidered damask. The material itself is undecorated, but the embroidery is usually elaborate. A very silky mercerized cotton is employed for working out the design, and this, with the soft sheen of the damask, makes a very rich cloth.

These cloths are more practical when made in the size of a large centerpiece, for then the individual plate and tumbler doilies of plain lace edged damask can be used to protect the polished table surface and are more easily laundered than the heavily embroidered cover.

Too Many.

It was W. S. Gilbert who once remarked: "It is easy enough for bishops to be good on a salary of five thousand pounds a year, but we have to be good for nothing—a pause—and some of us are."

AUSTRIAN RED CROSS ATTENDING RUSSIAN WOUNDED.

This scene is of Russian prisoners caught in the recent Teutonic drive against the Russians in Galicia having their wounds treated in an Austrian Red Cross Hospital near the front.

Where He Had to Stop.

The Search for Beauty.
Utilizing the face mask as a means of beautifying the complexion has been in vogue for many years. Henry III of France was vain enough to affect it in order to keep his skin fair. The face mask, again, was a part of the beauty treatment that Marguerite de Valois followed, and the celebrated Roman Empress Poppaea was another of its votaries. It was smeared inside with a beauty-giving cream and worn at night. Not every woman, however, cares to sleep in a mask.

More Sensible.
The reason the motion picture sunrise is so much more popular than the real article is that it has the good sense to come at a more reasonable hour.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 6, 1915.

The military authorities in the Province of Brandenburg, Germany, whose principal city is Berlin, have issued an order prohibiting the manufacture of cotton fabrics there after the first of August, the significant presumption being that Germany has need of all available cotton in the manufacture of gun-cotton and other explosives with which to kill the Allies. At the same time German feeling is strong against America for furnishing the Allies with manufactured ammunition with which they will kill German soldiers. The cotton used by Germany, by the way, came from America, and it is suggested that the shells now being shipped from America to the Allies will just about balance the killing capacity of the explosives made in Germany from American materials. Probably the justice of this fact will not appeal to Germany.

A Long Island woman who is a practicing attorney defended her husband when he was on trial on a criminal charge there last week and performed her work so well that she secured his acquittal by a jury. Here is an idea for suffragettes. Some of them, of course, want to vote because they think it is right they should, but undoubtedly with some of them there lurks a desire to be in a position either to reward or to punish the husband. Let the women become lawyers. If they want to even up old scores, they can do so easily by prosecuting the man and conducting the case against him in court. The experience will be good and they will not be able to complain that man is depriving them of their rights. If, on the other hand, there is love and affection between the couple, there will be many ways in which the suffragette can aid her husband; the Long Island case is the exception rather than the rule.

A number of noted educators, including former President Taft, are behind a movement to shorten the school vacation. In New York city the length of the vacation has doubled within fifty years, with the result that pupils lose one and a quarter years in eight school years. This is quite a setback in the life of a young person. What is true in the metropolis is more or less true in the other sections of the country. If the pupils made a good use of vacation time, the system would be all right, but they do not do this. Those of us who are along in years have the impression that boys and girls were better behaved in our time than at present. This might be explained on the principle that distance lends enchantment to the view, but for the fact that some proof is available. Men who have made a study of the subject give figures showing that juvenile delinquency has increased proportionately as the school year has shortened. We read that Judge Clearwater of this city and Secretary Stimson of New York have proposed Constitutional amendments for the purpose of dealing with juvenile delinquency by means of special courts—something which no one would have thought of suggesting fifty years ago. Furthermore, our children are demonstrably worse than those in foreign countries which have a longer school year. In Germany they arrest children for minor offenses against the game laws and for other deeds which are overlooked here, but in spite of the fact, only one-third as many German as American children get into court. There is no argument on the other side of the question worth considering.

It occurs to all of us at times that our taxes are too high in proportion to the benefit we get from the expenditure of the money, but we are pretty fortunate in this country in comparison with those parts of the world which have adopted public ownership of public utilities. Recent figures show that in Australasia, where the Governments own railroads, telegraphs, telephones and pretty nearly everything else, the total state and national expenses for Australia are $250,000,000 a year and for New Zealand $70,000,000. These two countries together have a population about half that of New York state alone, yet they spend approximately five times as much. Their per capita debt is $335, while that of the United States is only $12.50. Although taxes, and consequently the cost of living are so much higher in those countries, wages are only about three-fourths as high as they are in the United States. This is true in spite of the fact that Australia is absolutely controlled by labor unions, which would, of course, advance wages if it were possible. If Parliament should vote an increase it would have to increase taxes still more, which would be intolerable. Passenger rates are lower on Australasian railroads than on our railroads, but freight rates are much higher. An average day's wage in the United States will buy as much passenger transportation as an average day's wage in New Zealand, and will buy six times as much freight transportation. Similar things can be said about the cost of electric light and power, gas, water, etc. Yet there are people who want Americans to go into this ruinous scheme of public ownership, which has failed wherever it has been tried.

(By Our Woman Editor.)
Under the heading, "Some Things $2.50 Will Do," a big daily newspaper recently published a little article which seemed almost a sermonette addressed to comfortable folk at their summer resorts. Or, perhaps it was meant to reach the comfortable stay-at-homes, who have not half the troubles they imagine have come and who need an occasional look at the other side.

It was simply a page, chosen more or less at random from the record book of a charitable organization, citing a few of a hundred or more similar cases—all in the work of a single day.

Of course every story was tagged with the poverty label, and the sorry badge of distress was tacked upon them all.

But it chanced that the first little fellow whose case was recorded saw only the brightest of silver linings to his cloud of unhappiness, and the help that was sent his way made him quite contented—so easily do burdens slip from childish shoulders.

His father has tuberculosis, and the little Italian mother makes women's collars of Irish lace at $2.50 apiece—the kind, you know, for which the shops ask a goodly sum, quite in excess of that modest price.

By working very hard she has managed to finish one collar in three days when doing her best; but she kept at it so long and steadily and has made so many that her eyesight has become seriously affected and she has reached the end of her lace-making road.

She took the supply already made to the rooms of the association, asked for help in selling them and left the rooms, with the little one singing as happily as if living under his own southern skies, with dollars growing upon every bush. When the meager proceeds of the sale are exhausted, what then? There is the association, and there are other charitable organizations; but you remember there is tuberculosis to fight, and the wife's lace-making days are over.

It isn't a pretty story, is it?

Then there was a young wife—she is scarcely 21 yet—who wanted help because her husband was "away," which was a delicate, shrinking way of telling that he was serving a sentence for highway robbery. Her explanation that "he wouldn't have done it only we were broke," may have lessened her shame, but it did not remove the need for assistance. She is the mother of two children, the rent is piling up, and she told the society that the children were hungry. An order for groceries was her portion, and one fails to figure out the rent.

And another young woman had a sorry tale to offer. She, too, is in the early twenties—and her husband has deserted her. It is the same old poverty story of dispossession, hunger and misery; and relief is only temporary at best, though she went away with her stipend of help and a promise of more in the future.

Some of the calls were just for ice, for in these days of growing heat, like those of biting cold, there are more calls for help than when the weather is normal. Perhaps the pressure is harder and pride grows weaker when the days themselves are more trying.

Do you wonder that the woman in charge of the bureau, after sitting all day, listening to such sorrowful tales of woe, differing only in kind, wishes that the folk yachting or motoring or having a royal time in the mountains just now, or possibly skipping from one fascinating port to another, might get together and sit with her for a single hour of an average day?

She mentions one thing that $2.50 would do—it would send baby to the seashore, where it would keep him well nourished and well supplied with medical attendance and the saving breezes that forget to linger around tenement homes.

Many good folk beautifully remember, but it takes a lot of money to go half-way around, and one fancies that these stray stories are told in the hope that they may reach a lot of people who will reflect rather longer than usual upon their light-hearted fashion of spending money and who will put forth more efforts to make the summer days easier for those who dispense help and those who seek it. And this—in every city, every hamlet in the land.

In the hands of some, $2.50 is the veriest trifle, while to others it means—well, maybe the saving of their day.

FRANCES SHAFFER.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"My husband offers to teach me to cook," said the bride. "I hope," said her mother, "that you won't be foolish enough to learn."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Have you been reading about the Annapolis scandal, Mrs. Nurich?" "Naw, I don't take no stock in them divorce stories; they're all alike."—Buffalo Express.

She—"Haven't I seen you on the gridiron?" He—"So you think I look like a football player, eh?" She—"No; I thought you looked like a lobster."—Judge.

Old Grouch—"It's no use whining to me; I can see through you." Beggar—"So yer ought, mister, when I ain't had nothin' t' eat for a week."—Boston Transcript.

"I understand he has had a rather unsavory past." "Why, his morals are above reproach." "What I meant was that he used to be in the fertilizer business."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Pa, what is an interesting conversation?" "One who knows all about what's in the books that you've been too lazy or too indifferent to read for yourself, my boy."—Detroit Free Press.

One Too Many.

Little Helen was a very bright child, and her mother was very proud of her and very fond of exhibiting her when there were guests present. One afternoon the mother was giving a little party, and called for the little girl to do some imitations.

"She is so very clever," beamed the mother, as the child appeared. "She can imitate any one."

The father, who was present, was also very proud of the child's accomplishments and echoed:

"Indeed she can." Now, Helen, dear, pretend to be the housemaid."

Helen came forward, bowing in front of one of the guests.

"Will you have some more tea, madam?" she asked, politely, in an exact imitation of a maid; then, turning to another guest, she said:

"May I move your chair, madam. The sunlight is so very strong to-day."

The guests were very much interested and entertained, and asked Helen to do some more.

The little girl backing away from her father, who sat, a delighted spectator, exclaimed in a terrified tone:

"Oh, sir, let me go! Don't touch me, sir! Give you a hug and kiss, indeed! Supposing the missus was to hear you?"—New York Times.

A German Way.

An amusing scene was witnessed in a machine shop recently on the occasion of the retirement, after a service of 30 years, of a valued and faithful employee. In consideration of his long and faithful service the company had arranged to give him a monetary recognition, and it fell to the lot of the superintendent, a German, to make the presentation speech. This is how he did it:

"Gustave, you have worked for this company over 30 years, yes?"

A bow from the expectant recipient of the purse.

"And now you are going to quit, yes?"

"Well, Gustave, der company is so glad of it that I have been asked to hand you dese 20 pounds."—Washington Post.

A Sam Bernard.

A well-known actress, who is very fond of dogs, numbers among her possessions a magnificent specimen of the St. Bernard type.

One day a New Yorker, who visited the actress at her summer home, met a colored maid in the road accompanied by this big dog. He asked to whom the canine belonged.

"He belongs to my missus."

"Aren't you afraid of him? He's awfully big."

"No, indeed, sh. Dis dog won't harm nobody; he's jest chuck-full of fun all de time."

"What kind of a dog is he?"

"Well, sh, I hears my missus call him a full-blooded Sam Bernard."—Brooklyn Life.

Going to Say Something.

A political meeting was on in a certain Iowa town and Thomas R. Marshall, vice president of the United States, was to speak. The hall was packed and the air was stifling. For some reason it was impossible to open the windows, and one had to be broken.

It was feared that the noise would startle the audience and, perhaps, throw them into a panic. The mayor of the town stepped forward to give warning. The audience, however, had not assembled to listen to the mayor, and overwhelmed him with cries of "Marshall! Marshall!"

"Silence was not restored till the infuriated official yelled at the top of his voice:

"I'm not going to make a speech! I have something to say!"—New York Evening Post.

INDEPENDENCE DAY AT PHOENICIA

Phoenicia held an old fashioned Independence Day celebration on Monday. The celebration was held under the auspices of the Phoenicia band and lasted all day. There was a big attendance of present and former residents of Phoenicia and a large number of visitors from nearby places, besides summer boarders.

Two baseball games were played, one in the morning and one in the afternoon, between the All Kingston team of this city and the Phoenicia team. The morning games resulted: All Kingston, 8; Phoenicia, 1. The afternoon game resulted, All Kingston, 7; Phoenicia, 2.

During the afternoon there was an automobile parade and a number of foot races were run. At night the celebration concluded with a dance.

At 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon exercises were held, at which County Attorney John W. Eckert of this city, who is a native of Phoenicia, spoke.

Mr. Eckert's address was as follows:

Not since we became a nation, with the exception of the brief period of the Civil War, has there been a time, when it was more appropriate than today, that we celebrate the anniversary of the founding of this great republic and the laying of its cornerstone, the Declaration of Independence.

A situation has arisen in respect to the relations of the nations of the earth, that has had no parallel since creation. A great continent, supposedly, the continent of the most advanced education and the highest culture, is writhing in the throes of a most horrible war. Twelve nations, five of them being a class recognized as first rate powers, are engaged in a struggle which means the termination of the national existence of more than one of them. The issues of that war, as defined and alleged by one of the contending factions, are the founding of a more universal freedom, the termination of a war loving dynasty, and the abolition of an acquired military as a nation, and alleged by the other faction, they are a struggle for national existence and for the right to compete in the foremost ranks of commercialism. Both factions assert that their allegations are substantiated by the facts, and that right is with them and God behind them, in the conflict. Upon that question, we must leave it for future historians who can look upon the facts impartially and impassionately, to render the verdict.

We must, however, take cognizance of this Herculean struggle in so far as it affects our national welfare and the individual rights and interests of our citizens. If we are to maintain our national honor and integrity, and if that prestige which has heretofore been accorded the citizens of this government in every port, in every land and in every clime, is to continue; and if the stars and stripes are to continue to be the glorious insignia of liberty and protection which up to now they have been, the lives and property of American citizens must be by other nations maintained inviolate. And so shall they be. By means of diplomacy first, but if that be not sufficient, then by force of arms. Peace, we desire, but peace with our honor unscathed and our prestige undiminished.

Do not misinterpret my words to mean that I advocate the advancement of any propaganda, the object of which is to involve this with any other nation or nations in war. On the contrary, I am a strong and ardent advocate of peace; but I could not without sacrificing my manhood, my patriotism and my self respect stand for peace on any terms or upon the conditions proposed by that erstwhile pseudo-statesman, who like Judas of old betrayed his master with a kiss. I reiterate peace, but peace only with honor.

Already one of the warring factions has denied to us the free passage of the seas, and in a most barbaric manner consigned several hundred of our citizens to graves which are marked only by the white capped billows of the great Atlantic; and without warning have they destroyed our ships both from the air above and the waters beneath the surface of the earth. On the other hand, the other faction has interfered with our commerce and shipping and has seized the property of our merchants in a manner not in accordance with our interpretation of international law. The possibility is patent, that either of these circumstances may lead to the drawing of this nation into the whirlwind vortex of the conflict, unless speedily and satisfactorily our demands are met and acceded to. May the Almighty, in that wisdom which is more than infinite, prevent the possible from coming to pass; but in the event the storm of war, with its fury, should break, can we maintain the lofty fortress of success and power which we have heretofore attained?

That question gives rise to another—Does there exist in this land today that spirit of valor, that patriotism and that fidelity to government and its purposes which were the living counterparts of and the practice of the patriots of the colonies, both men and women? My answer is in the affirmative, and endeavor will be to demonstrate its truth. Therefore, I say that this is an important day, for the mere mention of the Fourth of July, not to state its significance, must rekindle and ignite the embers of patriotism which are smoldering, even if latent in ever true American heart. Have we today, upon our rolls of citizenship, forgotten the men who would have the courage, should the occasion require it to act as decisively and boldly as did the signers of the Declaration of Independence? I believe that we have, and I have the utmost confidence that the names of such men as Root, Taft, Wilson and Choate would be found high upon such a list. Have we among the rank and file such patriots as participated at Lexington, Concord and Bunker Hill? Again, I say yes; and even this old town of Shandaken would give her full quota of men for the protection of our nation, and to expound the doctrines of independence and civilization, as willingly as in the times of the revolution, the sturdy pioneers built a fort to repel the attacks of the Tories and Indians, and as willingly as it sent forth its sons to fight the campaigns of Schuyler and Greene. Even the women of this land, I feel confident, would perform feats equal to that performed by Betty Stark at Bennington, and would be as hard-shipped and privation as willingly as did the colonial dames of the revolution. There are generals and officers in our army who could be as brilliant as Washington, as wily as Putnam, as daring as Wayne and as dashing as Marion and Sumner.

It is as hard to compare those immortal sons of the revolution with the men of today as to compare the pyramids of the Pharaohs with the beautiful and artistic mausoleum of Grant; because of the fact that the conditions of today are the antithesis of the conditions of the latter half of the eighteenth century. There has been inconceivable progress in science, invention and art; but a minute analysis of the character and acts of the men of both ages, leads us to the conclusion that there is still left in the make up of our men of today a semblance of the old spirit of seventy-six.

We have met and we have solved and we are continuing to solve, problems of government, diplomacy, industry, economics and sociology, which require a moral courage, entailing often times in their solution a much real sacrifice as the solution of the problems of our early existence. In these days of searching publicity it is as hard to decide problems of great industrial or sociological importance in accordance with the fundamental law and constitution but against a public clamor as it was to decide questions one hundred and fifty years ago in opposition to the will of a sovereign and parliament in session on the other side of a great ocean. It is hard for men to follow the true dictates of their consciences in the face of a political and social ostracism; yet we have men who are this day doing this thing; and the animus which prompts their acts and the courage which carries them out has its basis in the wealth of our history, our traditions and our institutions, some of which we can do no better than to review.

We find the causes of the revolution to have been taxation without representation, violation of the provisions of Magna Charta in respect to personal liberty and the right of trial by jury, the suppression of representative government, and the restraint of trade. These violations of rights are considered by the colonies as culminating acts of injustice, as evidenced by their language in the Declaration of Independence: "We hold these truths to be self evident; that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." And that "governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed." Hence we find that the reasons for the establishment of this government to have been equity, justice and the right to participate in governmental affairs. What more sound and fundamental reasons could there have been for the establishment of any nation.

The manner of that government is the manner of the hearing of which the ear never tires. How we love to recount the tales of valor at Lexington, where the raw and untrained minute men so sternly rebuked the trained troops of George III; of Concord and its capture by that animated youth, Ethan Allen, of Saratoga and the humbling of the haughty Burgoyne; of Monmouth, and Princeton, and Germantown, and Brandywine and Cowpens. And how the hearts are wrung with sorrow and our eyes stream tears of gratitude when we review the sufferings of the Colonial armies when they, on that bleak December night, crossed the turbulent and ice clogged Delaware to take Trenton and the hired minions of a foreign prince; and the anguish of that winter of Valley Forge, when notwithstanding the pangs of hunger and the torture of frost, without mutiny or murmur, they came forth to fight a good fight with their wonderful commander. We are proud of the generosity of Morris whose fortune was thrown into the breach of a financial crisis; and we worship at the shrine of those wives and mothers who gave their husbands and their sons to be sacrificed upon the pyres of a war for independence.

Great is our gratification also of the events which succeeded Yorktown. That thirteen distinct commonwealths could pass through the trying period of the operation of the articles of confederation, and merge finally into the daybreak of sunlight of a national unity by the adoption of our ideal constitution, which then became and still remains the fundamental law of all our territory, was then and still is the marvel of the civilized world. In mentioning this period, I should be derelict indeed if I did not mention the names of Adams, Jefferson, Franklin and Hamilton, patriots all in deeds of statesmanship, if not in feats of arms.

Happily for us, however, and for the world at large, our history did not end with the adoption of the constitution. It now appears that this nation was destined to promulgate and establish great international principles and truth. In the ascendancy of its glory, this nation has taken her position in the foremost ranks; and it is now the brightest star in the constellation of the nations. By the war of 1812, we established the principle that a man, born of one country might renounce his allegiance thereto and become a citizen of the government of his adoption. Under the beneficent privilege of that doctrine, there have migrated to our shores the patriots of every monarchial government and of every empire, thereby augmenting our population and aiding the development of our unlimited natural resources. By the war of the rebellion, the remembrance of which still lingers with some of you, and especially with those of you who participated in that war and gave the flower of your manhood, to save that which we love, our union. By that war was established for all time, the proposition of the equality of man, be his creed or color what it may. Four long years and the lives of thousands of our progenitors whose blood enriched the battle fields of that conflict, were spent to present to the world a legacy of freedom. And when after Appomattox, the purple mantle of peace was slowly draped over the blue and the gray, and its folds embraced an undivided land, we became truly a "government of the people for the people and by the people," cleansed of the only dishonor which ever marred our fair name. From that time on, in our hearts has been linked with the name of Washington, the father of his country, the name of Lincoln, its savior.

Again in '98, though reluctant to engage in war, we remained true to our conception of duty and harkened to the agonized appeals of a defenseless people, crushed by the tyranny of a European sovereign, with the result that there now exists on the continent of North America, a new republic, and the people of the islands which are at the doors of the Orient are enjoying the privileges of a civilized and Christian rule with its attendant benign advantages of education, freedom of worship and inter-tribal peace. Even present observations would seem to indicate, that our mission has not yet ceased, and that we may yet be called upon to give to our neighboring Mexico, stable government, and free it from the ravages of revolution, anarchy and rapine.

With then, this solid foundation of a true republican form of government beneath us, with a history behind us that need never cause us to blush, illuminated by the brilliance of our contributions to liberty and civilization, can it with truth be said that there are no longer patriots abroad in this God given land. When we contemplate our growth from a narrow strip of rugged coast, bounded on the east by the turbulent water of the relentless Atlantic and jostled on the west by the rugged Appalachian Range, to an empire which stretches across the Mississippi, and on across the broad expanse of a rolling prairie, and on still across the majestic Rockies to the shores when the golden sands of California are met by the blue waters of the peaceful Pacific, can we in justice to ourselves, say that we have reached the summit of our existence?

It is my honest belief, that we are as a nation but just coming into our just reward; and as I look across the hazy vista of succeeding years, I see the outlines of a greater United States, and increased sphere of influence, and multiplied industries. I believe like Macaulay, that he who has an accurate knowledge of the past, will not despair of the present and always will be willing to trust to the future.

If prophecy, then be true, what is to be our mission and our duty toward the future? Having accomplished what we have, we cannot be content to rest upon laurels already won; but we must continue to help work out the problems of existence, for nothing can be more problematical than the future which extends on to eternity. I conceive, that we must unceasingly strive to be a power for great good in the community of the universe; and again permit me to take my text from that fountain of principles to which I so often have referred, the Declaration of Independence, which in referring to the abuses of power leading to an unhappy state of the people, says: "whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness."

It has been said of war, that it is the greatest exponent of civilization and of peace, a statement which I believe is borne out by history; and the great European War now in progress will have that same result. While men are lying inactive after bloody battles, or are recovering from wounds from which they have suffered, and while wives and childless mothers are sitting by cheerless firesides with thoughts of those who have in battle perished, there is a wonderful opportunity for thought. The power of reason is then, perhaps more than at other times, stimulated to action; and the cause of the effort of which they are victims, is the trend toward which these thoughts are directed. It is then that they endeavor to discover the reason and cause of their unhappiness; and is it not the natural sequence of such thoughts and enquiry, that they should turn to the form of government under which they exist, to discover if that be the cause. Searching enquiry into these matters will lead them to analyze the principles upon which such government is based, and such an analysis is bound to show the crying defects in most of the underlying principles of the governments of the old world.

Nothing is more certain or sure, than that when this war is over, and it will be immaterial which side is victorious, there must, and there will be a revolutionizing of the existing forms of government of the contending nations. Each of them will have accumulated a national debt, which it will take generations to pay, and the distribution of the tax to meet which will be a stupendous task. Likewise will the male population of those countries be so materially reduced, as to make human life far more precious than ever before and steps will be taken by the remaining populace to draw about them greater safeguards to protect them from future similar ravages. The rights of individuals which in those countries have heretofore been so frequently ignored, will be made the subject of grave consideration; and I have no doubt there will be written into the organic law of each of such nations a "Bill of Rights," akin to our own.

During this re-organization of these governments, the people will be seeking information and examining precedents, to determine what course they can follow with safety and happiness. The forms of all existing governments, including our own, will be minutely examined, and the varying success with which such governments have provided for peace and prosperity for their peoples, and their present acceptability, will lead to their adoption or rejection. From such an examination of our form and its operation, as affects the past, we need have no fear. Our history is an open book, from each page of which shines forth the doctrines of right and the practice of equity and justice toward all, while national prosperity and happiness and individual contentment are the headlines of each chapter. It shows the relation of each man to the mass, and of each man to each other man, to be the same. Titles of nobility and any distinction of class through governmental favor, are unknown. No man, thank God, has any advantage over another, other than the advantage of intellect, which is the gift of our creator, and something for which no individual is responsible, except in so far as he fails to develop it.

It is in our present day existence then that we shall fail, if fail we do. And now my message in that respect is this. Each man and each woman must to his or her utmost ability practice the tenets of our creed, as set forth in the Declaration of Independence, our National and our State Constitutions, and our statutes; each one in addition must observe the laws of God and the golden rule should be the practice of life; each one must assume his just burden of responsibility of government and its attendant duties; each one must respect the rights of others, and see to it that no class distinction of wealth or otherwise is created. Education must continue to be our salvation, and industry will be the safety value of our existence. It would be well if we could enforce the maxim of John Smith, that "He who will not work, shall not eat."

for nothing breeds discontent and evil as does idleness. If we observe these things and follow the beaten path of our fathers, clinging to the principles of liberty and justice which have to us been bequeathed, we need have no fear but that our mission and our full duty toward the future and to the world will have been performed.

Once more a loving duty is nearly done; once more the love of our country and its history has brought us together to renew our covenants of patriotism and to offer upon the altar of our national heroes, our tribute to them who made possible our present happiness and success. And tonight, as we stand under the great dome of heaven and gaze upon the twinkling stars, we will also offer to the Almighty who rules this universe, prayers of thanksgiving, that liberty and freedom prevail throughout our blessed land, that rebellion is known no more; and that peace is yet abroad.

How Isinglass Is Made.

The raw material of isinglass is the air bladders or sounds of fish, and is not of value except for this one purpose. In Russia, where the finest isinglass is made, the sounds of the sturgeon are cut open and steeped in water until the outer membrane separates from the inner; then the latter is washed and dried in the sun.

Patients Remembered.

At present there are but fifteen patients at the Tuberculosis Hospital, which indicates at once, the need of the investigating nurse, for with all the cases of tuberculosis that are now in Ulster county, there should be a long waiting list for admission to the hospital instead of empty beds. During the month of June the following gifts were received at the hospital: Repairing clock, Oppenheimer Brothers; knitted shawl, Mrs. John Brodhead; old linen, Mrs. C. G. Palen; bath robe, a friend; two large baskets of spinach, Mrs. Wyckoff; old linen and magazines, Mrs. Charles Preston; magazines, Mrs. John Boice; ten yards of cheese cloth, Mrs. Henry Buncie; old linen, Mrs. J. T. Johnson; old linen, a friend; old linen, Miss Emma Freer; magazines, Miss Webster; magazines, Stuyvesant barber shop; setting out with plants of both flower beds, Burrevin's Sons. All of these gifts have been heartily appreciated.

SHAUGHNESSY SAYS CANADA IS TO MAKE MORE MUNITIONS.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy on ship board, as he returned from England, and on the Red Star liner Lapland.

New York, July 6.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who returned from England, after a conference with Lord Kitchener and other members of the British cabinet relative to the supply of war munitions from Canadian factories, denied reports that his visit to England was to complain that J. P. Morgan & Co., the fiscal agents of the British government in this country, had slighted Canada in awarding contracts. He said that Canada would produce still more material working in unison with the Morgan interests. He added that there was no shortage of shells.

RUSSIAN PRISONERS CAUGHT IN BIG DRIVE

This photograph made on the Austrian firing line in Galicia, shows a huge batch of Russian prisoners, caught in the recent Teutonic drive against the Russians in that section, herded into a small enclosure, awaiting transportation to the prison camps in the rear. Although this picture was made about three weeks ago, most of the Russians are wearing their heavy overcoats, showing that the climate in the fighting area in Galicia has been cold.

Importance of Business.

Perpetual devotion to what a man calls his business is only to be sustained by perpetual neglect of many other things. And it is not by any means certain that a man's business is the most important thing he has to do.—Robert L. Stevenson.

Work By the Hands.

There must be work done by the hands or none of us would live, and work done by the brains or the life would not be worth having, and the same men cannot do both.—Ruskin.

Best Way to Make Coffee.

Take an iron tea-kettle, pour in cold water to the amount required, put in coffee freshly parched and ground, set on fire and let it come to a boil slowly. After boiling about five minutes, take off, settle by pouring out a cupful and pouring back again, and then, in about five minutes more, your coffee will be ready—coffee for the gods.

SLUGGERS ARE GOOD AT TRAP SHOOTING

Joe Jackson! The name inspires the shivers in American league pitchers; it inspires enthusiasm in the American league fans.

"Some sweet hitter, that boy," says the fan. When Connie Mack first plucked Joe from the bushes, he wasn't exactly a green lemon, but he wasn't ripe for high baseball society. As I recall it, he had two fathers; he didn't wear socks and he was troubled with homesickness, says a doubler with homesickness, says a doubler with homesickness, says a doubler with homesickness. I do not think Connie would have fired him if he didn't like him. I do not think Connie would have fired him if he didn't like him. I do not think Connie would have fired him if he didn't like him.

After Joe recovered from Bakeritis (new name for aversion to wandering from one's own fireside), he spent a season in New Orleans, where he made Southern league pitchers' life so miserable they induced Mr. Somers to yank Joe back into the American league again, and Cleveland has domiciled the sockless sockdologer ever since. He has been about half the Cleveland team the last two years; the other half wears socks, doesn't get homesick and is very do-

SCHEME OF GARRY HERRMANN

Chairman of National Baseball Commission Would Reduce Expenses of Big League Clubs.

Garry Herrmann, president of the Reds, and chairman of the National Baseball commission, believes the time has come for the money men in baseball to watch their step. Herrmann predicted the other day that big league baseball clubs, with one or two exceptions, cannot continue paying present high salaries to players, and that many long-term contract holders face the alternative of accepting reduced salaries, or seeing their club reach the position where it cannot pay its salary obligations.

Herrmann said he favored cutting down club rosters wherever possible, and creating a "reserve list" of players to be drawn upon by the owners or managers whenever it might become necessary to fill vacancies caused by sickness, injury or release.

Charley Jackson Is Wanted.

Scouts for the Pittsburgh club are trying to land Charley Jackson of the Bloomington club, who is doing great work in left field.

Importance of Diet.

How you succeed is according to how you work. How you work is according to how you think. How you think is according to how you eat. Not always, but often enough to make it a rule.

BASEBALL STORIES

Zach Wheat's batting is far below the usual mark.

Myers of the Dodgers has developed into a great outfielder.

Connie Mack may need pitchers, but he needs about 100,000 fans more.

The International league race is getting to be a jam and even Toronto has hopes.

George McConnell, the former pitcher of the Yankees, is going well with the Chicago Feds.

Dazzy Vance is another Pittsburgh discard who is proving a bear in the Western league again.

Buck Herzog can always be depended upon to put up a brilliantly dashing and aggressive game.

John Lindsay, recently released by Memphis, has joined the Bloomington team of the Three-I league.

Omaha has released Pitcher Ralph Willis. He pitched good ball last year but could not get started this season.

Seeing America is a good idea, but Connie Mack and John McGraw don't think much of the view from last place.

Up to date we have not heard from President Tener in regard to his prediction that this would be the banner year for baseball.

Dick Egan, secured by the Braves from the Dodgers to cover second base in the absence of Evers, has disappointed Boston fans.

Clarence Rowland already has won a title. He is the Beau Brummel of the major league managers, a distinction belonging to Billy Evans among the arbiters.

There is one team in the National league followers are overlooking. That is the Brooklyn team. It is filled with hard hitters, any one of whom is likely to break up a game.

ALBANY SPECIALIST

Will be in Kingston FRIDAY, JULY 9th, AT 340 BROADWAY

DR. SWINBURNE, OF ALBANY.

Has been a successful practicing physician for over twenty years. He has for many years devoted his entire time to the study and cure of chronic diseases—just such cases that resist the skill of the ordinary physician and it is by Dr. Swinburne's original improved methods that many patients whose cases were pronounced incurable by other physicians were restored to health. He is opposed to the wild craze for surgery and in many cases his treatment cured without the aid of surgery when an operation was said to be the only means of a cure. He condemns the prevalent practice of giving opiates and other powerful drugs. Such drugs produce only temporary relief and the quieting and stupefying effects of the drugs allow a disease to continue to develop before a patient fully realizes the serious condition. Dr. Swinburne's method is to treat the foundation of the trouble so that the result will be a perfect and permanent cure, and many wonderful cures have been produced in cases where other eminent doctors had failed. Cases most successfully treated are Stomach Trouble, Nerve and Blood Disorders, Neurasthenia or other Nerve Troubles, Eczema and Blood Diseases, Rheumatism, Special Weakness, Debility, Malnutrition, Chronic Coughs and Lung Diseases, and Private Diseases of Men and Women.
